Templates of Presentation

Another key nutrient of the slideshow is the usage of templates to present your slides. Templates are extremely useful to depict your original ideas in a most effective manner because they contain striking backgrounds with good color combinations that become the center of attention of the audience. So, you should apply such principles to give a vibrant look to your write my paper for me as the audience gets bored with the boring presentation. Thus, add some colors to make it smarter. If it's an office presentation, then try to add the logo of the company in a screen's corner to show a sign of professionalism and interest.

Guidelines for Crucial PowerPoint Slideshow

Fonts

- Pick out a single font like Arial as it is easy to read instead of using other fonts that create reading problems for the audience.
- The size of the font should not be smaller than 24.
- The same font must be used for all the headings in the slides.
- Don't put too much material in a slide as wordy slides leave a negative mark on viewers.
- Limit the use of punctuation marks.

What's Next?

Our facial expressions are especially important during the presentation. Just as receivers if are not giving any feedback it makes the communicator uncomfortable, similarly a presenter's blank face may also throw people off balance.

What is the message that you get?

Make sure your non-verbal match your words.

There should be a social smile when you start your presentation.

- Keep your hand free at sides so you can gesture naturally
- Open hand gestures o builds trust and rapport

O Subconsciously gives a message that you are not hiding anything

- Use close hand gesture only to make a point
- Avoid crossing the midlines of your body with your arms—you look defensive, creates a wall
- Avoid pointing
- Avoid pizza pie gesture—make you look overly enthusiastic, emotional and out of control
- Avoid arm akimbo (hands on the hips and elbows bowed outwards)—looks very authoritative and commanding
- Avoid keeping your hands in your pockets or behind your back
- Avoid rocking back and forth
- Do not lean on the podium or become frozen behind it

- Make purposeful movement—avoid wandering aimlessly mid-sentence, walk only when you make a transition to a new idea or when you want paper from paper writing service to be closer to the audience to explain a point
- If you want to move backward—move discreetly at a diagonal or gradually stepping back while making a point
- Avoid distracting manners o Adjusting your notes o Folding unfolding arms o Hands through hair o Blinking eyes Clenching jaws o Frowning o Squinting o Licking lips
- Have meaningful eye contact o Eye connection with one person at a time, 3-6 sec, just the right amount of time to convey the right idea to one person and then move on

Food for Thought

- Remember using contrasting colors particularly for background as well as text. So, light text is suitable for a dark background.
- Try to add core phrases and incorporate only important info.
- Do not make too many slides as it will put a question mark on your credibility and the audience will get bored as well.
- Do not engage using more than 3 colors on a single chart.
