WhatsApp.Poumedj Poumedj is an oasis in the middle of the Sahara, around 200 km east of Faya-Largeau, in the Azawad region of northern Mali. It was liberated by Malian and Algerian troops on 28 January 2019. It is the second largest oasis in the region, with around 130,000 inhabitants. The village was founded in 1510 and is first mentioned in 1521 in a list of possessions of the Lord of Aoudaghost, appointed to govern the region of Timbuktu. In 1554, the Songhai Empire attacked Poumedj and, according to the chronicle of al-Maghili, the village was later destroyed. By 1720, it had become a part of the Deutsch-Sudan domain, which was in turn ceded to the British in 1885. The Ottoman Empire took over in 1913 and the French in 1920, until the French–Mauritanian War in the early 1990s.
