Fifteen patients with advanced solid tumors (5 lung cancer, 5 breast cancer, 5 colon cancer) were treated with combination chemotherapy consisting of adriamycin (30 mg/m²) and cisplatin (60 mg/m²) on day 1, recombinant interferon alfa-2b (rIFN-alpha-2b) (Nippon Zoki Co.) was given on days 1-5 by one-hour intravenous infusion, and thereafter on day 1 by 6-hour infusion and on days 2-5 by 72-hour infusion. Dose of rIFN-alpha-2b was determined by a dose finding study (four patients each given 0.3 x 10⁶, 1.2 x 10⁶ and 3.6 x 10⁶ U/M²) and one patient with pulmonary metastasis of breast cancer given 1.2 x 10⁶ U/M² was studied. A bolus injection of 50 mg of leucovorin was given to prevent dose limiting bone marrow toxicity. Adriamycin and cisplatin were administered on day 1. Dose limiting toxicity (DLT) were neutropenia (grade 3-4) in 2 patients, vomiting and nausea (grade 3-4) in 5 patients and stomatitis (grade 3-4) in 2 patients. rIFN-alpha-2b was given from the 1st day and was given at least at the same dose for 72 hours to other agents. The maximum tolerated dose (MTD) of rIFN-alpha-2b was 3.6 x 10⁶ U/M² 2d92ce491b
