I have installed the D-Link G941 Dual-Band N300 WiFi Router a few weeks ago and everything is fine, the only problem is that I can't connect to my router with any type of apps that requires internet. I tried Google Home, Google Assistant and Google Now but it doesn't work. I have a DSL modem connected to my home network and it is working perfectly. I have already tried connecting to my router with a network cable and I am able to connect. Any help? A: Not an answer, but I had a similar problem when trying to connect my TP-Link Archer AX7 to my WiFi router. I was able to fix it by updating the firmware on my router. Edit/Extract the firmware version on your router from the file named r32_00_24_02_XX.bin Copy the contents of the r32_00_24_02_XX.bin to a text file and save it to your SD card Connect your router to your computer using the network cable, select the file saved on your SD card Execute the command: For the Archer AX7 model: se For the Archer C7 model: se. For the Archer A7 model: se a-f For the Archer C8 model: se a-f. For the Archer C6 model: se a-f,h For the Archer T6 model: se a-f,h,i For the Archer WN7000 model: se a-f,h,i,j For the Archer WN8500 model: se a-f,h,i,j,k For the Archer WN7000/WN8500 series models: se a-f,h,i,j,k,l Then click on "yes" to reboot your router. [Latex allergy in dental students]. In this article we present the results of a survey of 61 dental students (56% males, 44% females) from 3 dental schools in Puebla, Mexico. All the students answered a written questionnaire concerning their knowledge, perception, and practices about latex allergy, and their sociodemographic and occupational details. The findings show a small percentage of individuals with a previous diagnosis of
