Andover Astray, One of the City's Best-Known Hotels, Is Now Undergoing an Artistic Renovation. Andover's iconic Andover Hotel is going through an artistic transformation. The hotel is getting a $4.7 million renovation. According to the project's website, the area was inspired by the work of the painter Pablo Picasso, the author of The Three Dancers. The new rooms are inspired by the work of Picasso's models and friends, such as poet Paul Eluard and dancer Lydia de Monfried. The project's art adviser, Anna Wylie, told the Times Picayune that the hotel is also being inspired by other artists such as Spanish painter Joan Miró and French painter Niki de Saint-Phalle. The Andover is home to 39 rooms. Many of those are private rooms. There are nine suites, which are suites with two bedrooms. The bathrooms in the suites are bigger than the standard hotel rooms. The suites also have 1,000-square-foot living rooms. There are three different types of suites: The Eluard Suite ($400 per night); the de Monfried Suite ($595 per night); and the de Monfried Plaza Suite ($950 per night). Each suite includes a private dining room and a living room. Each suite also includes a kitchen and a pool. According to TripAdvisor, the rooms are all $55 per night and include: Your Choice of Suites The Andover offers suites for everyone, from those on a budget to those who want the best hotel experience available. The hotel also has a lounge. The lounge serves a variety of cocktails and a variety of wine. It has a garden terrace. The lounge also has a large-screen TV. The lounge also has private dining. The lounge has two other locations: There is another lounge in the Andover, which is in a private home. That lounge has a private garden terrace. The other lounge is in a private home on the edge of New Orleans. The lounge is called the "Belvedere Lounge." The lounge is reserved for Andover guests only. The lounge also serves coffee and desserts. It also serves beer and wine. There is free WiFi available in the lounge. The lounge has seven different drinks. Some of those drinks include: A variety of wines The wine list has seven different bottles. Some of those bottles include: The lounge serves a variety of wine by the glass. It includes 2d92ce491b
