Disney is to child
movies what McDonalds is to food—it's everywhere.
Disney, McDonalds,
the Food Network,
some variation of Disney-owned Marvel
movies, Disney

princess movies,
Disney fairytales, Disney movies and any other form of theme parks and Disney based media is always out there in some shape or form. Even if you are not a kid, your kid is.

And that's no bad thing because that means Disney has been there and done it. In the past 30 years, Disney has made a lot of wonderful movies. It has some phenomenal, memorable classics as well. While some like Snow White and Pinocchio are classics of their own, others have only seen it's popularity slowly rise with age. Cinderella, Beauty and the Beast, Aladdin, Lion King, Toy Story and more recently 21 Jump Street and The Descendants, have all enjoyed an increase in popularity with age. "And this one was actually good!" you think. A little more mention of the movies in the title and there you have it. It's a Disney Movie. I mean, how could it not be?

What makes Disney
movies so different than other movies is that they just hit it out of the park with everything Disney has to offer. For those of us born after 1990, we have the luxury of knowing this is true.

There are lessons to be learned from the movies, they just exist for us and we understand that. It doesn't matter if you are 5 or 50, Disney movies come along to teach you a lesson about life or movies. No other movies, even PG-13 movies, will ever compare to the depth of a Disney movie. You have to ask yourself, "what is
