In an email to staff at the Illinois Department of Public Health (IDPH) on Thursday, IDPH Director Nirav Gupta informed workers that he would be taking a temporary leave from the department in the wake of a poorly managed system failure that released the names, birthdays, Social Security numbers, and other personal information of nearly 2,000 citizens. In an email to staff at the Illinois Department of Public Health (IDPH) on Thursday, IDPH Director Nirav Gupta informed workers that he would be taking a temporary leave from the department in the wake of a poorly managed system failure that released the names, birthdays, Social Security numbers, and other personal information of nearly 2,000 citizens. The message was sent to staffers shortly after Illinois Gov. J.B. Pritzker issued an executive order allowing state employees to seek legal counsel to resolve their private grievances, even if it means suing the state. Gupta's move appears to be the latest attempt to stem the fallout from the system failure, which was discovered in early August and resulted in a breach of over two years of data. The system failure released the personal information on over 2,000 citizens, including addresses, Social Security numbers, dates of birth, and file numbers—including some Illinois children who were not yet born. The failure was discovered during a monthly security testing of the state's online services, which frequently have outages, said Janet Maley, an IDPH spokeswoman. "In the August incident, the outage wasn't detected until three days after it occurred, so action was taken very late," Maley said in an interview. Illinois Department of Commerce and Economic Opportunity (DCEO) was monitoring the system closely after it was discovered by its own security team, but only found some of the breaches, Maley said. By the time they detected the information release, it was too late to block the leaks. DCEO didn't have the system's underlying code, thus its own security team's efforts to stop it weren't deemed sufficient. An IT contractor, who worked for DCEO, initially discovered that their Intranet server had not been updated in months, despite DCEO having cut off the IT contractor's access to the server. Maley said that after this discovery, the IT contractor contacted

WASHINGTON, D.C. – House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) delivered the following remarks on the House Floor after voting on the House-passed Senate tax bill: "We are nearing the finish line on the most important legislative priority we have had in almost five years: tax reform. Now, it is past due that we reinvigorate and revitalize American businesses and households. "The tax cuts Republicans passed last month are not the end of our work. Our work is far from over. "We must pass additional spending cuts, cap Medicare and Medicaid, save Social Security, and do much more – including cuts to the defense budget and mandatory programs – to pay for the deficit. "Democrats' many principled and important amendments are included in this final version of the bill, because it is so important that we pass the bill. But this must be the final version of the bill. "Republicans have succeeded in piling on to this bill all of their partisan desires: slashing tax rates for the wealthy and special interests, while jacking up health care premiums and deductibles for millions of people and tens of millions more in Medicare beneficiaries and Medicaid recipients. They gut our nation's safety net, while delivering tax breaks to the rich, to corporations, to oil and gas companies, and to hedge fund managers, investment bankers and others like them. "At a time when the national debt is already at more than $20 trillion, the debt is projected to reach $38.5 trillion within the next decade. According to the Congressional Budget Office, the Republican tax bill will add at least $1.5 trillion to the national debt. "Our country's future is at stake. We simply cannot go on this way. This must not be the most important bill passed in our lifetimes. "Now, many say that the market will give a thumbs up because of the President's State of the Union address. But where was he when an important Democratic leader, Senator Harry Reid, was being falsely labeled 'A Nazi,' hurled insults about a sitting senator, stood by as Speaker of the House John Boehner, was accused of being a racist, and had tea partiers arrested for out-of-order behavior at his town hall meeting? Where was the President when Republicans were screaming 'President Obama should be impeached,' when a colleague yelled 'You lie
