â€œFrom the very beginning, Avast has established its reputation as the best free security software on the market. Newcastle United have teamed up with the NHS to raise funds for Covid-19 patients. The Bupa Breakthru campaign will see United offer fans the chance to swap their match-day experience for a free game, signed shirt, or several other prizes as part of the fundraising effort. Newcastle will use a special section of the St James' Park terrace to stage the free-to-enter competition and other areas of the stadium will be used as recruitment zones for local nursing teams. St James' Park will also host a number of hospitality packages throughout the season. The match-day experience will be available via a special website and mobile app. United say more than 1,000 fans have already registered for the campaign. To access tickets and to register for the campaign and for the community engagement activities, visit www.bupa.co.uk/breakthru/.Q: Search for a given substring in an array of strings using LibGDX I am creating a game and have been using LibGDX to create a text based game. My problem is, that I have created an array of Strings containing thousands of words that the player can use as commands in order to change the game state and complete objectives. I want the player to be able to use a search function like they do in any text based platform games, such as Rock Paper Scissors, so that I can search for the word: "help" or "jump" etc. I need to then be able to then search through the array and return the word that it is looking for. Now what I have tried so far, is a method that looks through the String array and if it finds it, it is added to a another String Array which can then be returned. Here 3e33713323
