Image credit: Download NOW The OnlineArithm.com Calculator. Calculate the area of circles, ellipses, rectangles, regular polygons and irregular shapes. The calculator features a set of objects that can be plugged into the formula. Circle Area = $\text{SQRT}(R2 - r2) - 1/2 * r2$ Ellipse Area = $\text{SQRT}(rx \times ry) - L/2 \times L/2$ Rounded Rectangle Area = $\text{SQRT}((R1 + r2) \times (R2 + r1)) / 2$ Polygon Area = $\text{SQRT}(2 * [\text{sum of all sides}] / \text{number of sides})$ I, J, K Polygon Area = $\text{SQRT}((R1 + r2) \times (R2 + r1))$ Hint 1: To find the sum of all sides of a Polygon, divide the total of the exterior lines by the number of sides. In the case of regular polygons multiply the previous example by the number of sides in the shape. Hint 2: When the shape is irregular divide the total of the exterior lines by the number of sides instead. Tips: The upper corner will be the first point measured (r1) The lower corner will be the last point measured (r2) When you calculate the sum of all sides you will need to multiply by 1 for even shapes, and 1/2 for odd shapes. Don't forget to be creative and explore the other functions! Enjoy! In this version we made a simpler formula that will work for almost all scenarios. We dropped a few objects that didn't meet our criteria for a more simplified formula. In the next release we will be dropping all the sizes, dividing all the values, rounding, converting to Fahrenheit, Celsius, Metric, Degrees, etc. What do you think of the objects that are being dropped? Are they not useful? Will you miss them? If you think so, leave us a comment and tell us what you would like to see! Don't forget to like, share, follow and subscribe if you want to see more content like this! We are a small indie team, most of the development, operation and maintenance is being done

It feels like too much of a commitment to have these in my pocket, every day. I'd probably be able to answer a lot more if I had to type answers instead of just using my finger. I also like having something to do when I don't have my phone. This isn't really helping me in that regard. Also, I'm not a fan of seeing my test results right away. I can figure that stuff out for myself just fine. Having a score for my answers right away does feel a bit too much like a self-esteem boost. Ladies, if you are facing issues with your man staying faithful to you, you are not alone. In fact, a number of men have been falling for other women and it is not at all surprising to find out that most men are unfaithful to their partners. So if you are tired of being cheated on, then what do you need to do to stop it from happening again? Thankfully, there are quite a few things that can help you to curb your partner's infidelity. Going to the gynaecologist first One thing you can do if you are facing infidelity is to go to the gynaecologist. Although this sounds like an easy and simple answer, it is not that easy to go to the gynaecologist since they will usually ask you about your relationship with your partner and will most likely recommend that you terminate your relationship. First of all, you need to find out how you feel about cheating. Secondly, you need to ensure that you do not make the mistake of having an affair with a married man. Thirdly, you need to ensure that you will be ready for an affair because it may lead to heartbreak. Empower yourself If you find yourself contemplating having an affair, you need to stop yourself. This means that you need to do whatever it takes to stop yourself from going through with having an affair. Sometimes, you may even consider the benefits of having an affair and see if that works for you. You may find the whole idea funny, but the main thing is that if you are contemplating
