The game's most important and integral feature is EA SPORTS Football Club, a holistic, deep integration with the latest FIFA 19 experience. This includes Personalise, Set-Up, Live Sessions and much more. It is the most feature-rich and deeply integrated piece of software ever released in the history of FIFA. Physically-Inspired Gameplay Technology FIFA 22 features two new gameplay mechanics. First is the introduction of D-pad Zebrazero. It is a contextual, dynamic, real-time default P-Z-down setting. Just like a D-pad, pressing Zebrazero switches to down on the D-pad and works with all key combinations for short, precise dribbles and feet. Additionally, it also has two new icons: the double tap Zebrazero (the D-pad) and a 'real' Zebrazero (tap-and-hold on the D-pad and it will work with all Zebrazero events). This gives users the opportunity to more easily use short, precise dribbles without having to wait for P-Z-down to kick in. This is an exciting addition that will enhance the playing experience of all FIFA players. HyperMotion Technology FIFA 22 features "HyperMotion Technology". It is a physically-based animation system that features intelligent physics that build upon the highly successful virtual animation system in FIFA 19. The data collected from high-intensity, real-life football matches is used to power the player physics. It delivers truly unpredictable physics that change and adapt based on the actions and moves of the human player. It is built on the structure of the 'Crazy Glue' animation, a system that was first applied to FIFA 18. This means that the game's new animation system is more reactive and proactive in how it responds and reacts to both live and in-game actions. FIFA players can now expect to experience real-world physics at a much higher level than ever before. In addition, it is the most physically-accurate animation engine in franchise history, benefitting all-play modes, all environments and all FIFA Players. Matchmaking The new matchmaking system will, for the first time, properly group players in real-time in teams, and the game will randomly pair up players according to their level. This improves the ability of both teams to play together and builds a more accurate reflection of the competition
